DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicants' election with traverse of Group I, claims 22-26 in the reply filed on 9/14/06 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the methods of Group I are covered by Groups II and III, and it would not be an unnecessary burden for the Examiner to search for prior art for Groups I and IV. This is not found persuasive because with respect to Applicants' first argument the groups are not within the permitted combination of different categories of inventions, namely one apparatus and one process. Further, Applicants even state in their Remarks that the Group IV "is a kit containing two or more vaccines, which within Group I, are combined as one composition"; a kit containing two distinct vaccines is distinctly different from a composition (especially where chemical or biological combinations are concerned).

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(d) the invention was first patented or caused to be patented, or was the subject of an inventor's certificate, by the applicant or his legal representatives or assigns in a foreign country prior to the date of the application for patent in this country on an application for patent or inventor's certificate filed more than twelve months before the filing of the application in the United States.

3. Claims 22, and 24-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(d) as being barred by applicants' US 6,913,754 Patent which claims priority to Great Britain application 9701897 filed January 1997. Griffiths et al. disclose the use of an immunogenic composition comprising live Arthrobacter, and an adjuvant or substance admixed with an immunogen in order to elicit a more marked immune response; wherein it is further disclosed that the Arthrobacter can be administered concurrently with other vaccines (which is considered to include an immunogen) with standard routine of farm husbandry. Additionally, Applicants' presently disclose (specification, page 6, para. 3) that the vaccine may be combined with a "conventional" vaccine, and that it is not unduly burdensome and would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to screen a selection of known strains or newly-isolated strains for the identifying characteristics and/or SRS immunogenic properties by screening (specification, page 4, para. 3). It is further disclosed that the Arthrobacter has ATCC accession number 55921, and that the composition is in lyophilized form with a sterile diluent.

4. Claims 22 and 25-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(d) as being barred by applicants' US Patent 6,627,203 which claims priority to Great Britain application 9701897 filed January 1997. Griffiths et al. disclose the use of an immunogenic composition comprising live Arthrobacter, wherein it is further disclosed that the Arthrobacter can be administered concurrently with other vaccines (which is considered to include an immunogen) with standard routine of farm husbandry. Additionally, Applicants' presently disclose (specification, page 6, para. 3) that the vaccine may be combined with a "conventional" vaccine, and that it is not unduly burdensome and would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to screen a selection of known strains or newly-isolated strains for the identifying characteristics and/or SRS immunogenic properties by screening (specification, page 4, para. 3). It is further disclosed that the Arthrobacter has ATCC accession number 55921, and that the composition is in lyophilized form with a sterile diluent.

5. Claims 22, and 24-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(d) as being barred by applicants' PCT application (WO 98/33884) published August 6, 1998. Griffiths et al. disclose the use of an immunogenic composition comprising live Arthrobacter, and an adjuvant or substance admixed with an immunogen in order to elicit a more marked immune response; wherein it is further disclosed that the Arthrobacter can be administered concurrently with other vaccines (which is considered to include an immunogen) with standard routine of farm husbandry. It is further disclosed that the Arthrobacter has ATCC accession number 55921, and that the composition is in lyophilized form with a sterile diluent.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Art Unit: 3644

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

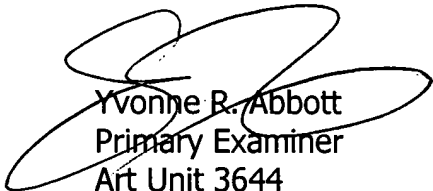

7. Claims 23 and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Griffiths et al. ('203) in view of Kuzyk et al. (US 2003/0165526). Although Griffiths et al. disclose the use of an immunogen, it is not specifically disclosed that it is selected from the claimed group. Kuzyk et al. teach that it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use Piscirickettsia salmonis antigen to vaccinate for rickettsial diseases.
